DECREES OF THE COURT.

Case in Court for Eighteen Years in which Huckster W. F. Rockey is a Principal Decided in His Favor.

A lawsuit which has been in the courts for the last eighteen years, and in which the costs piled up to an amount considerably in excess of that originally at stake, was finally terminated last week when Judge Orvis reversed the findings of the master and directed that judgment be entered for the defendant, William F. Rockey, the huckster, of Tusseyville. Originally the plaintiff was George Campbel', of Milesburg. Before the latter's death he assigned the case to Captain C. T. Fryberger, of Philipsburg, a relative. The ruling by Judge Orvis is against Captain Fryberger.

The case is especially interesting in view of the number of judges and lawyers figuring in it and most of whom died before the litigation was brought to a close. Judges Furst and Love, before whom the matter was taken both died before the case could be concluded. The late Colonel W. F. Reeder was the first counsel for Mr. Rockey, who subsequently engaged the late J. C. Meyer. The late Colonel E R. Chambers also figured as counsel for Mr. Rockey. At the termination of the case the plaintiff was represented by J. Thomas Mitchell, while Mr. Rockey's lawyers at the finish were W. G. Runkle and Charles P. Hewes, the latter of Erie. Two masters also figured in the proceedings. The late John Rankin was the first master. After his death, Harry Keller was appointed to hear the proceedings.

Back in 1894 George Campbell brought suit against Mr. Rockey for commissions due him for sales made by him as agent. He contended that he was working under contract. This Mr. Rockey disputed, although he admitted that there was a verbal understanding covering commissions on sales. The amount of the claim filed was disputed. The late John Rankin was named as master to hear the case. He died before filing a report, and Harry Keller was named. The case was instituted before the late Judge Furst. Following the latter's death it was brought before the late Judge Love. With the death of the latter the case automatically came before Judge Orvis.

Harry Keller, as master, finally submitted a report, finding in favor of the plaintiff, who by this time was Captain Fryberger. The finding was appealed. Judge Orvis, before whom the appeal was argued, set aside the finding of the master and directed that judgment be entered for the defendant.

Several other cases were disposed of by Judge Orvis, as reported by the Republican. That of T. H. Harter, of Loganton, the well known lumberman, against Nathan, Emeline, Roy and Elmer Hough, of Miles township, for trespass, was decided in favor of Mr. Harter. Originally the jury in the case brought in a verdict for Mr. Harter for $244. The defendants appealed. The plaintiff asked that the verdict be doubled, the law giving him the privilege of asking that a verdict in such a case be doubled or tripled. Judge Orvis in his opinion refused to strike off the verdict, as asked for by the defendants, and directed that the verdict be doubled for the plaintiff, making the amount $488 instead of $244

In the case of W. H. Johnsonbaugh vs. M. S. Betz and Gabriel Betz, Judge Orvis refused a new trial and directed that judgment for $102 be entered for the plaintiff. This suit was brought against the defendants for lumber sold and delivered and over payment for which there was some dispute. The jury rendered a verdict for the plaintiff for $102. The appeal was dismissed, Judge Orvis finding for the plaintiff.

In the case of Alfred Cherry vs. W. G. Runkle, administrator for Catherine Harper, a new trial was granted.

A rule to open judgment was made by Judge Orvis in the case of William Witmer vs. John and Samuel Garner.

THE LOCAL PAPER.

It is Entitled to Your Support Although It May Not Always Represent Your Personal Opinion.

The columns of a newspaper are the publishers stock in trade, and the parties who ask to use them for their special benefit must expect to pay for the same, and we hope that all parties will, after due consideration, view the matter in the proper light. Every public-spirited citizen of a place should have pride in seeing his own town and surrounding country improving. Every new house or barn in the surrounding country; every new fence, pavement, street, road or shade tree; every new manufacturing establishment erected; every new business opened enhances the value of of property in our midst.

Every honest, reflecting mind knows this to be true, and you should not forget that the local newspaper adds much of the general wealth and prosperity of the place, as well as increases the reputation of the town abroad. It benefits all who have business in the place, enhances the value of property, besides being a public convenience. If its columns are not filled with brilliant editorials, still it benefits you in many ways. It increases trade, it cautions against imposition, it saves you from loss, it warns you of danger, it points out different advantages and increases your profits. Now, if you want such a paper you must give it your support, assist in increasing its circulation by getting your neighbors to subscribe with you for it. If you want such a paper you must not consider it an act of charity to support it but a means to increase your own wealth as well as that of the place in which you live. The local press is the power that moves the people; therefore, give it your support in all the ways you can.

Ziegler Reunion.

The Ziegler reunion at Grange Park, Centre Hall, on Saturday, June 22nd, was a very pleasant occasion, and was very largely attended by relatives and friends from different parts of the state.

The day being an ideal one added greatly to the pleasure of the occasion. The forenoon was spent in social intercourse, and in the cultivation of a closer friendship.

After dinner a service was held in the auditorium at which Prof. I. W. Ziegler, of Reading, delivered the address of welcome in a forceful style, and cited some history of the Ziegler's ancestry and patriotism in the revolutionary and civil wars, after which the Hon. W. C. Heinle, of Bellefonte, made a very timely and appropriate address.

The executive committee met at 3 p. m. and transacted its business. The following officers were elected: President, J. T. Ziegler, Pleasant Gap; Secretary, C. E. Ziegler, Spring Mills; Treasurer, J. C. Rossman, Spring Mills; Historian, Prof. I. W. Ziegler, Reading.

The next annual reunion will be held at Hecla Park, in June, 1913.

State Treasurer to be Elected.

Judge Kunkle of the Dauphin county court decided that the term for Auditor General A. F. Sisson will expire May, 1913, and therefore it will be lawful to elect his successor in November of this year. A test case was brought to determine the effects of the Constitutional amendments of 1909 so far as they refer to the election of Auditor General. The effect of the decision is to legalize the nomination of A. E. Powell of Allegheny county, the Republican nominee for Auditor General, and Robert E. Cress, of Johnstown, the Democratic nominee.

Farm House Burned.

The home of Jerry Roan, on Buffalo Run, near the Meyers cemetery, was completely destroyed by fire on Saturday afternoon a week. The contents of the house, including $70 or $80 in money, were burned. The house was occupied by Mr. Roan and the family of his son-in-law, John Kelly. The loss is upward of $2000, with but $600 insurance.

Mr. Roan and Mr. Kelly were out in the harvest fields when the fire was discovered. It is supposed that the trouble was caused by a defective stove.

Smith-Dale.

Rev. G. E. Smith, pastor of the Houserville charge of the United Brethren church, and Miss Bertha Dale, of Houserville, were married at Johnstown. Mr. Smith is one of Centre county's most progressive young ministers. His bride is a popular young lady and is well qualified to grace her new home. The young couple have many friends who extend congratulations and best wishes.

Would John D. have enough oil, even if we had the money to buy it, to settle the dust on Main street?

DEATHS.

Noah Rockey, an aged and well known Centre countian, died rather suddenly on Saturday evening a week, at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Elmer Limbert, between Spring Mills and Millheim. He was in apparently good health on Saturday afternoon. While pushing a buggy into the barn at the Limbert home he was seized with a coughing spell. He rapidly became weaker until he passed away at the time noted. His body was removed to the home of a son, John C. Rockey at Filmore, on Monday, and interment, made there on Tuesday. Surviving are these children: Mrs. John (Louisa) Dunkard, Mrs. George (Amelia) Zettle, Mrs. Harry (Lydia) Corman, George Rockey, who lives in Montana; Mrs. Sadie Mechley, of Filmore, and Mrs. Elmer (Kate) Limbert, of near Spring Mills. Two brothers, James, of Altoona, and John B., and several sisters, including Mrs. Jane Albright, of Spring Mills, also survive.

Joseph E. Shirk died at his home, aged eighty-four years, eleven months. He was ill in bed the past eleven weeks with diseases incident to old age.

He was born at Potters Mills, but spent the greater part of his life in Lewistown. By occupation he was an ax-maker and worked in the factory of William Mann.

His wife, whose maiden name was Elizabeth Bennett, died thirteen years ago. A step-son, Thomas Watson, lives at Pittsburg. Three daughters, Mrs. Louise Patterson, Mrs. Mary Ritz, and Mrs. Maude Hill of Carlisle, survive. A niece, Miss Edna Shirk, and a greatgrandson, Joseph E. Hanlon is living. Other surviving relatives are two brothers and two sisters, Daniel Shirk, of Meadville, Wells Shirk, of Oil City, Miss Catherine Shirk, and Mrs. Amelia Bethel, of Plainfield, N. J.

Mr. Shirk was for years a member of the Lutheran church at Yeagertown. His funeral services were held at his late residence, Rev. William Heakes officiating.

W. Frank Richardson died in the West Chester hospital on July 4th from injuries received just one month previous. The body was brought to Spring Mills for interment, which took place on Saturday, and was conducted by the Odd Fellows, of which order the deceased was a member. Rev. Price was the officiating minister.

On June 4th, Mr. Richardson, who by occupation was a farmer and lived at Newtown Square, in Chester county, fell from the top of his barn, breaking both arms and otherwise injuring himself. Later blood poision set in which caused his death, at the hospital named.

Mr. Richardson was a native of Gregg township, and was thirty-two years old last October. There survives one sister, Mrs. Luther M. Royer, of near Spring Mills. Also a wife, nee Sadie Boob, of Woodward, and two children.

John W. Woomer died at his late home on Marsh Creek, following an illness of but three days. Death was due to acute cramp. Deceased was aged fifty seven years and fourteen days. He is survived by his mother, his wife and these daughters: Mrs. W. D. Walker, of Bigler; Mrs. S. T. Williams, of Hollidaysburg; Mrs. John S. Lucas, of Youngstown, Ohio, and Misses Edith, Esther and Mina at home.

LETTERS FROM SUBSCRIBERS.

Reporter Subscribers' Correspondent Column—Interesting Communications.

The prospects for a crop in Kansas are good at this time but harvesting will be late.

The conditions in the beginning of June were discouraging, and some of the most courageous left the country, and later the tide turned.

We have not raised a crop here in Trego county for two years. We had a wet spring, then by the first of May it turned in dry. Many farmers became discouraged and quite a few left the country. During the second week in June it began to rain, and rain fell almost continuously for two weeks.

The wheat plants took new life, and now the prospects are first class for a fine crop, although harvesting will be later than usual.

I was raised near Linden Hall, and reading the Reporter affords me a great deal of pleasure, as I continue to retain interest in the people at the old home.

MRS AGNES MARKLE.
Ogallah, Kansas.

Mrs. Alfred Catherman, writes the Reporter from Milmont, on July 5th, in this way:

Everybody is working overtime in Union county. Hay, which was a good crop, is about all stored. Some rye has been cut.

Better Roads in Potter.

Really there are prospects for better roads in Potter township. The portion of rebuilt road east of the Harper farm, tenanted by George Heckman, east of Centre Hall, has the appearance of having been carefully built. The stones are well crushed, and the sides of the road uniformly graded to a gutter. It is the only piece of road built in Potter township for some years that would receive a high score if passed on by road experts. The section in question has the appearance of having been built with care. It is not a road that will bear heavy traffic for many years, but it is such an improvement over the methods usually employed that the Reporter is pleased to make these favorable comments. As to its cost the writer has no knowledge; it is the finished product that is favorably looked upon.

Potter township is in need of at least one machine if it wishes to build roads that will be ready to use immediately after construction. The township is in need of a roller—a real roller. Whether or not the finances of the township are such as would warrant the purchase of such a machine at this time, the writer is not the judge, but if good roads are to be built, the roller is an absolute necessity.

LOCALS

Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Geary, and little daughter Agnes, spent a few days last week at the home of Mr. Geary's parents, at Newport.

Jonas Stine, of Matternville, while working on the McNitt-Huyett sawmill, at Waddle, had his right hand so badly mangled that it had to be amputated.

Mrs. Anna Bitts and Mrs. Marie McCabe, both of Pittsburgh, are at the home of the former's aunt, Miss Annie Bible, in Centre Hall, and will remain for two weeks.

Rev. C. T. Aikens and son, Claude, of Selinsgrove, the latter having just graduated from Yale College, with the former's brother, James Aikens, of State College, sailed from New York for a three months' tour of Europe.

If the State Highway Department, after it takes over the pike between Centre Hall and Bellefonte, ever puts that piece of road into better condition than it is now and keeps it that way, Mr. Bigelow will be entitled to a chromo.

Rev. D. Gress, of Harrison City, was one of the spectators at Baltimore who cheered for Wilson while his stock was on the rise. Since the nomination he is very much elated because of the good prospects of a Democratic progressive president being elected.

Sugar Valley Grange, No. 1470, Patrons of Husbandry, have selected Saturday, 27th, as the date on which the order will hold its second annual picnic and festival, in Jameson's grove, near Loganton. Hon. Leonard Rhone, of Centre Hall, will be one of the speakers. An elaborate program of exercises is being arranged for the occasion.

A large hay barn was erected on Saturday morning on the E. M. Huyett farm, west of Centre Hall. On account of the busy season, the willing helpers were called together early in the morning, and in a few hours the work was accomplished. The Huyett farm is tenanted by Perry H. Luse, who, on the day of the raising, had some forty loads of hay in the barn, and estimated that just about one-half of the crop had been housed.

Centre Hall Wins from Boalsburg.

By six runs to two, Centre Hall defeated Boalsburg Saturday afternoon, preceding the Fourth, on Grange Park. Smith pitched a masterful game for the local team, and only at one time was he called upon to resort to his effective ball—a speedy out-drop—in order to prevent the visitors from coming nearer than ninety feet within the home plate. The two runs scored by Boalsburg were fluky; one was the result of an overthrow, and the other came when the right fielder misgauged a fly ball.

Ross for Boalsburg also pitched effectively, and but for faulty fielding behind him, the game would have resolved itself into a pitcher's battle.

The seventh inning opened favorably for the home team when Knarr rapped one to left for three bases. With a two and three count against him, Smith walloped a "groove" ball on a line to left field and scored a home run. The ball left the infield with terrific speed, and at no time was over four feet from the ground. By nature of the drive, it rolled into foul territory, and the short grass offered little resistance to the fast traveling pellet. The left fielder did a veritable "Marathon" before he reached it.

William Bradford handled Smith's delivery in fine fashion. It was his first game behind the bat, and many "regular" catchers could not have done so well. Four of the enemy attempted a steal of second, and each time the runner was a victim of his unerring aim. "Billy" was always in the game, and a great share of the victory is due him.

DEFEATED AT MILLHEIM.

On the Fourth the local team met defeat at the hands of the Millheim club, on the latter's grounds, by the score of 9 to 8.

The game was featured by heavy hitting on both sides, although several of the big drives would have been caught by better fielding.

Centre Hall threw a scare into the camp of the enemy in the eighth inning where they scored four runs on heavy hitting and clever base running, and came near tying the score.

William Bradford pitched for the home team, and although it was the first time he did mound duty, he pitched a clever game.

Electric Light for Grange Park.

During the Grange Encampment and Fair a portion of Grange Park will be lighted up with electricity. The headquarters, the boarding house and the Huber building will be wired, and fitted up with tungsten lights. The motive power will be a gasoline engine, the equipment to be furnished by S. H. Landis, of Rheems. Ralph Stover, of Aaronsburg, a regular exhibitor at the fair, will have charge of the electric light plant.

If you are a housewife you cannot reasonably hope to be healthy or beautiful by washing dishes, sweeping and doing housework all day, and crawling into bed dead tired at night. You must get out into the open air and sunlight. If you do this every day and keep your stomach and bowels in good order by taking Chamberlains Tablets when needed, you should become both healthy and beautiful. For sale by all dealers.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS.

HAPPENINGS OF LOCAL INTEREST FROM ALL PARTS.

John Blauser, of Potters Mills, purchased two horses at the horse sale in Bellefonte on Saturday.

Misses Gertrude and Zella Kieffer, of Youngwood, are guests of Miss Cora Brungart, in Centre Hall.

Mrs. J. B. Heberling and Elizabeth Bloom, both of State College, were operated on for appendicitis.

The Reporter is short a column of news and all because there was no council meeting the first Friday night in this month.

Many requests for tents are coming to the management of the Grange Encampment and Fair. An effort will be made to supply all who make their wants known early.

Miss Mary A. Foreman, who taught school at West Conshohocken during the past school year, is at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Foreman, of near Spring Mills.

Miss Iona Tibbitts, who just graduated from a Maine college, came to the home of her father, F. J. Tibbitts, the furniture dealer and undertaker in Centre Hall, where she will remain for the present.

Dr. W. H. Schuyler and daughter, Miss Eloise, Monday morning went to New York state for a vacation of several weeks. The former will spend most of the time at Auburn and the latter at Clinton.

Philip Saul, who for a number of years lived near Centre Hall, came from Bellefonte on the morning of the Fourth and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. George Michael, at Old Fort. He is now employed by H. E. Zimmerman, in Bellefonte.

After being located for a week or more at Clyde and Bellevue, Ohio, Guy W. Jacobs is again back to the Keystone State, and is now at Wilkinsburg. He thinks northern Ohio an ideal country, and the towns beautiful and prosperous.

George Smith, while helping Bruce Hettinger to make hay, was thrown from the rear of a wagon while loading, and the result was torn ligaments in the right arm. A quick start of the team hitched to the wagon was the cause that threw the boy to the ground.

The six inches of loamy gravel hauled on Main street through the borough last fall is gradually being carried away by the wind. An automobile that can't raise a cloud of dust a mile long by a half mile wide is going much less than the speed limit named by the council at its June meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. James High and granddaughter Mary came to the Runkle home near Tusseyville on a visit a short time ago. The day after the Fourth Mr. High returned home, and on Monday will go to Elkins, West Virginia, where he will be employed in a large tannery for a month or more.

Prof. A. M. Allison, of Highland Park, Illinois, and who has been connected with the school work in that place for several years, is attending the summer sessions of the Ann Arbor (Michigan) University to further fit himself for his profession. Prof. Allison is a brother of Dr. J. R. G. Allison, in this place, and was principal of the High School some years ago.

D. Olie Stover, who is here on a visit to his mother, brothers and sisters, cannot laud Beres, Ohio, highly enough. He has been in that thriving town for a number of years, and is now the right hand man of Dunham & Company, manufacturers of land rollers and pulverizers. He is a moulder by trade but during the past few years has been overseer of a number of workman for the firm named.

John Burkholder, at Centre Hill, had a mishap that, while serious enough, might have been much worse. He was unloading hay with a harpoon, and when in the act of tripping the fork the trip rope broke, causing him to lose his equilibrium and fall from the load of hay to the barn floor. When picked up he was unconscious, and it was thought that he was badly injured, but on regaining consciousness it was found that no bones were broken, and in a few days he was able to resume haymaking as before.

The milk condensery at Mill Hall, received two car loads of fine Holstein cows which were taken to their stock farm near Flemington. This company did an unusually large business last month, having shipped thirteen car loads of condensed milk of their famous Pilgrim brand. Some of this product went to Florida and other points in the far south. Fifty six tubs of butter was the largest shipment of that product in one day during the month of June and with this large output of their goods, they are unable to supply the demand, according to a statement in the Lock Haven Democrat.

SYNDICATING KINDLINESS.

Congress has declined to incorporate the hundred million dollar Rockefeller philanthropic trust, and perhaps it is just as well; not so much because the trust might in the dim future somehow menace the liberties of the people, as because the refusal is indirectly a blow at the tendency of the time to syndicate and organize all altruistic endeavor. Individualism is what we should encourage in this field, says the Columbia (S. C.) State. The syndication method excels, perhaps, in "efficiency," if one appraises philanthropy by the rate and degree in which it translates good will on the one hand into relief and uplift on the other. But we have never understood that the good of the recipient was the whole of a gift's blessings. Well-doing at second hand is not comparable with well-doing that requires individual thought, anxiety and self-denial. One's sense of humanity and his powers of compassion atrophy under the syndication system, but where one performs himself the maximum of kindly acts, philanthropic virtue is constantly being elicited, exercised and matured. It is good to see a tendency checked which in its logical extension would cause people to repose a smug content in the doing of good on the installment plan, as they might pay for a piece of furniture.

Philosophy is, as somebody has said, merely a more than usually determined effort to think clearly. Human nature seems to have been endowed with a restless curiosity about the great problems of existence. Most of us do more or less desultory thinking about them, and to that extent are philosophers. The ancient Greeks were the first to consider the problems serious and they brought to bear on them the keenest sort of intelligence. Since their time other keen minds in all ages have been concerned with them. When we get a new idea, for instance, we often feel as if we had known it all the time, only it had never come to the surface before in our minds and been recognized before. Does this mean that somehow all fragments of it come to consciousness? We describe a certain table as smooth. But looked at through a microscope it seems rough. A still more powerful glass might radically change its appearance. Which is the real table? What is behind the data that our senses give us? We wonder where we come from and what the real meaning of life is. These and similar problems come up at times in the minds of most persons, whether students of philosophy or not, says the Kansas City Star. A consideration of such questions certainly tends to widen the horizon, and to give a possible background to existence.

The New York Telephone Company has given twenty of its office men outside work as solicitors, and has supplied the vacancies created in their former positions by engaging women, who will be known as cashiers. Their business is to handle the large sums in nickels, dimes and quarters which reach the offices of the company from pay stations in different parts of the city. It is stated by officials of the company that they have found women more reliable and less inclined to yield to temptation than men in handling cash. And yet there are men who assert that women have no sense of business honor.

A New York judge has decided that the car company must settle if a sleeping passenger's trousers are stolen from his berth at a station through a window. The company ought to be required, also, to carry an extra pair of trousers for the relief of the passenger in case of such an embarrassing occurrence.

Denver boasts that in its public schools girls over twelve years of age are taught cooking, sewing, laundry work, the care of children, respect for husbands, the wise management of incomes and some art by which they can earn a living. But Denver omits to mention how many are graduated each year.

The management of one of New York's largest vaudeville houses has decided to bar mother-in-law jokes and to prohibit "humor" which is based upon a man's ability to be untrue to his wife without permitting her to know it. This is the kind of an uplift that may really uplift.

PASSENGER CAR SPLIT WIDE OPEN

Twenty-One Persons Killed and Many Hurt.

ENGINE FALLS ON ITS SIDE

Passengers Either Crushed Or Hurled Into the Air—First Fatal Accident On the Ligonier Road In 40 Years.

Latrobe, Pa.—Twenty-one persons were killed and 30 injured, a large number fatally, when a passenger train on the Ligonier Valley Railroad was crashed into from behind by a double-header freight train. Only one passenger escaped without injury.

The accident occurred at the fair grounds at Wilpen, one and a half miles from Ligonier, a summer resort.

The passenger train had started from Ligonier. It consisted of an engine and a coach, the engine pushing the coach. The freight train was made up of many coal cars and was being pulled by two heavy locomotives.

The impact was terrific. The passenger coach was practically laid open and the passengers either crushed or hurled like shots through the air.

It was the first fatal accident, it is said, in the history of the Ligonier Road for the past 40 years. The train was well crowded, every seat in the lone coach being occupied with persons returning from a Fourth of July holiday.

The coach was ripped to pieces. All the occupants were hurled to the roadbed. Some fell in the path of the onrushing engine, while others were imbedded, partly in the cinders and crushed stones beside the rails.

Engineer McConnaughey was scalded to death, while his fireman, George Byers, jumped, only to fall on the track and meet death under the wheels.

SANEST OF FOURTHS

Twelve Cities Show Great Improvement—Philadelphia Had More Than Half Of the Deaths and Injuries.

Chicago.—Thursday was the country's "safest and sanest" Fourth of July and as a result only 20 lives were sacrificed, as compared with 57 in 1911, and with 131 in 1910, and with 215 in 1909, according to the record kept by the Chicago Tribune.

The Tribune published the following table, giving details of Thursday's mishaps: Dead, 20, by fireworks, 6; cannon, 1; firearms, 6; gunpowder, 6; toy pistols, 1; runaway, 1.

Injured, 64; by fireworks, 316; cannon, 47; firearms, 84; gunpowder, 93; torpedoes, 33; toy pistols, 47; runaways, 20.

In a dozen large cities there were only three deaths reported, as compared with 39 four years ago. In 10 of these cities there was not a single death. Two of the deaths and 156 of the lesser injuries occurred in Philadelphia, leaving only one death and 79 other injuries distributed among eleven large cities.

THIS CONSTITUTION ILLEGAL.

Gov. Marshall's Draft For Indiana Found Unconstitutional.

Indianapolis.—The new Indiana Constitution as drafted by Gov. Thomas R. Marshall and adopted at the last session of the Legislature was declared unconstitutional by the Indiana Supreme Court. The court held that the right to change the Constitution lies with the people and that the amendments should have been submitted to a constitutional convention instead of the Legislature.

Chihuahua, Mexico.—Federal cavalry took possession of the city of Chihuahua. No resistance was offered by the rebel rear guard, which moved north along the Mexican Central toward Juarez, and no disorders occurred.

Raised the Stars and Stripes.

New Orleans.—For the first time in history the Stars and Stripes fluttered over the Confederate Veterans' Home here Thursday. The flag raising marked the celebration of the Fourth and was intended to reciprocate a sentiment expressed by the Kingsley Post, G. A. R., of Boston, donor of the flag.

May Adjourn Soon.

Washington.—"We will get through before the end of the month," said Representative Sherley, of Kentucky, leading Democratic member of the House Committee on Appropriations, Thursday. The fact that the Senate has failed to act upon nine of the appropriation bills, the pending impeachment proceedings against Judge Archbald and the Stanley Steel Trust investigation report did not cause Mr. Sherley to change his view.

TUMBLE TO DEATH FROM PARACHUTE

Frightful Fall of Thomas Moore at Pleasure Park.

LOSES HIS GRIP ON TRAPEZE

Thomas Moore, Making His Three-Cut Dip, Using Three Parachutes, One After Another, When the Accident Occurred.

New York.—Six thousand persons, including the fiancee of Thomas Moore, a professional aeronaut, saw him tumble to death from a parachute Thursday afternoon after making a thrilling balloon ascension from Hillside Pleasure Park, Belleville, N. J. He dropped 800 feet, falling in Union avenue, Nutley, a half mile from where he ascended.

Moore, a resident of Jacksonville, Fla., was a daring airman. For the last three seasons he had startled the patrons of Hillside Park with his daring feats. When killed he was making what he had named his "three-cut dip," using three parachutes, one after another, in his descent. In making the last dip he lost his grip on the trapeze.

HICCOUGHS PROVE FATAL.

Physicians Explode Giant Firecracker As Last Resort.

Logansport, Ind.—Physicians exploded a giant firecracker at the bedside of James McGowan, at a hospital here, in the hope that the nervous shock would stop his hiccoughing, from which he had been suffering for five days, but though he was quieted, he died of exhaustion. McGowan, who was 48 years old, had been hiccoughing continuously, and electricity and other remedial agents were tried without effect before the opening of the Fourth of July celebration suggested the firecracker as a last aid.

ARRESTED FOR LARCENY.

Former Assistant Treasurer of Steel Company.

New York.—Peter J. Eliot, who was employed as assistant treasurer and secretary in the reorganization of the Southern Iron and Steel Company and who has been missing since November last, was arrested here, charged with the larceny of $40,000 in Southern Iron and Steel bonds. He was an accountant for a firm engaged in carrying out the reorganization plans and as such handled the securities. When arrested he refused to discuss the alleged theft.

KILLED IN FREAK WAY.

Rope Breaks Woman's Neck As Mule Runs Away.

Lebanon, Pa.—Miss Rebecca Hartman, 26 years old, of Swatara township, this county, was killed in an unusual manner. She was assisting in putting new-mown hay into the barn, leading a mule which was used in the operation of a patent hay fork. The animal became frightened and ran away, dragging the woman in its mad flight. Miss Hartman was held tightly against the corner of the barn by the rope with the mule at the other end of it. The rope cut deep into her face and broke her neck and also her jawbone.

TWO KILLED, 100 HURT.

No Safe and Sane Observance in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Pa.—A toll of two deaths and over 100 injured was exacted by Philadelphia's celebration of the Fourth, notwithstanding the efforts to make the day safe and sane. The many hospitals were taxed to their utmost by the well-meant, but misguided efforts of too ardent celebrators. Most of the injured were children.

SPEEDING TRAIN CRUSHES ANOTHER

Express Going Sixty-Five Miles an Hour.

BIG FLYER BREAKS LOOSE

Races On At 65 Miles An Hour, When Man At Lever Sees Danger, Reverses Throttle and Is Thrown From Cab.

Corning, N. Y.—Westbound Lackawanna passenger train, No. 9, from New York, due to arrive at Corning at 4.47 A. M., composed of two engines, a baggage car, three Pullmans and two day coaches in the order named, were demolished at Gibson, three miles east of Corning, at 5.25 o'clock Thursday morning by express train, No. 11, due at Corning at 5.10 A. M. Forty-one persons were killed and between 50 and 60 injured. Many of the victims were holiday excursionists bound to Niagara Falls, who had boarded the train at points along the line. The wreck was the worst in the history of the road. Its cause, according to Engineer Schroeder of the express, was his failure to see signals set against his train. The morning was foggy and he said he could not make them out. The wrecked train stood on the main track, blocked by a crippled freight train. There was no flag out, according to Engineer Schroeder. The signals, Engineer Schroeder declared, it was too foggy to see, were just around a curve.

The flying express plunged past them and crashed into the rear of No. 9, bringing death to more than two score of its passengers.

Schroeder had taken No. 11 at Elmira 15 minutes before. It was a few minutes late. The stretch of track from Elmira to Corning is fitted for fast running, and he was sending his train along at 65 miles an hour. No. 9 was supposed to be half an hour ahead of him. He had no warning until he made out the outline of the rear coach of No. 9 through the fog. Then he threw on the reverse without shutting off steam. The jerk threw the train off the track and the locomotive plunged on to splinter the two day coaches filled with the excursionists and tear through the last of the Pullmans. Schroeder said the impact threw him from the cab and landed him on his shoulder on the roadbed, practically unhurt.

The 100-ton monster continued its plunge through the middle of the train, grinding everything in its path. When finally blocked by the debris, it remained on the roadbed in the midst of the desolation it had caused, while hundreds of persons rushed in every kind of vehicle to the scene to lift and pry the dead and injured from the tangled mass of wreckage.

Most of the bodies found were badly mangled. The wrecked cars were one heaped-up mass of wreckage, jamming into each other in telescope fashion. The last two cars on train No. 11 remained on the track and later were used as temporary hospitals.

Those who visited the scene of the wreck before the hospital forces had time to finish the work of removal, witnessed many scenes of horror.

BIG DIRIGIBLE EXPLODES IN AIR

Vaniman, His Brother and Three Others Killed.

WOMEN CRY AND FAINT

First a Rumble, and Then Air Seems Ablaze Before Car and Gas Bag Drop—Whole Resort At Scene.

Atlantic City, N. J.—With thousands of spectators standing in awe, too horrified to utter a sound, the dirigible Akron, with Melvin Vaniman, commander; his younger brother, Calvin Vaniman; Fred Almas, Walter Guest and George Brilliant, his crew aboard, was blown to atoms at 6.38 o'clock Tuesday morning. Vaniman and his crew were killed instantly.

The body of Calvin was recovered at 8 o'clock. The rest are buried in the mass of wreckage under nine feet of water, a quarter mile off Brigantine Beach, half a mile from this city, over Absecon Inlet.

The huge airship was launched at 6.15 o'clock. She sailed gracefully over the inlet with the crowd below shouting themselves hoarse in enthusiasm. This was to have been the final trial of the airship before she tried a flight across the ocean, and half the town was out to see her off.

After cruising about over the smooth sea, brilliantly outlined against the horizon by the intensity of the sun's rays, for perhaps half an hour, the ship, apparently under perfect control, was headed out from the Inlet over a stretch of sea. Here the first trouble was experienced. Attempts to take water aboard for ballast proved a failure and the airship started to mount steadily in the air, rising gradually. It appeared that Vaniman and his crew were fighting hard to bring her down, she refused to respond.

The dirigible had reached a point about half a mile above the ocean. The crowd on shore, wildly excited by the battle in the air for supremacy, stood quiet. A sinister warning came with a muffled rumble, carried across the water on the still air. Electrified by the noise the thousands stood tense. Then a sheet of flame burst from the center of the big gas bag. The dirigible was obscured from view for a few short seconds. The air about seemed to be on fire. Then this dissipated.

The understructure of the car of the ship tore away from the rest of the vessel. It up ended, described a slow arc, then reversed and descended like a plummet. The bag, still containing enough gas to keep it afloat, hovered above a moment, fluttered like a thing alive and then darted down through the air; spreading out first; then collapsing and coming down in a long spiral, landing in the ocean a hundred feet from where the car had struck.

When the car had descended about half way to the water a body shot out from the side and came down faster than the wrecked ship. It struck the water 50 feet from the final landing place of the wreckage. As it came down the body could be seen to be mangled, a leg and arm hanging limp, while the rest of the body seemed to be stiffened.

This was afterward discovered to be Calvin Vaniman.

One theory advanced for the accident was that a leak in the fuel tank had caused the explosion and the flames from this set the bag afire. Another explanation was that too rapid expansion of gas caused the explosion.

Vaniman recently has been making numerous secret experiments with an interior air bag, by which he expected to control the rising and lowering of the balloon. His plan was to pump air into the interior bag, which would expand and thereby compress the gas within the balloon.

Vaniman was positive that he had solved the problem of aerial navigation. It is advanced by some that he had equipped the Akron with this new device and that its operation may have caused the accident. Vaniman talked in public, but usually acted secretly when he had experiments to make.

SYNOPSIS.

The scene at the opening of the story is laid in the library of an old worn-out southern plantation, known as the Barony. The place is to be sold, and its history and that of the owners, the Quintards, is the subject of discussion by Jonathan Crenshaw, a business man, a stranger known as Bladen, and Bob Yancy, a farmer, when Hannibal Wayne Hazard, a mysterious child of the old southern family, makes his appearance. Yancy tells how he adopted the boy.

CHAPTER III. (Continued).

The next day Yancy had occasion to visit Balaam's Cross Roads. Crenshaw gave him a disquieting opinion as to the probable contents of his letter, for he himself had heard from Bladen that he had decided to assume the care of the boy.

"I reckon Bladen will have the law on his side, Bob!"

"The law be damned—I got what's fair on mine. I don't wish fo' better than that," exclaimed Yancy, over his shoulder. He strode from the store and started down the sandy road at a brisk run. Miserable forebodings of an impending tragedy leaped up within him, and the miles were many that lay between him and the Hill.

As he breasted the slope he came within sight of a little group in his own dooryard. Saving only Uncle Sammy Bellamy, the group resolved itself into the women and children of the Hill, but there was one small figure he missed. The patriarch hurried toward him, leaning on his cane.

"They've took your nevvy, Bob!" he cried, in a high, thin voice.

"Who's took him?" asked Yancy hoarsely.

"Hit were Dave Blount. Get your gun, Bob, and go after him—kill the miserable sneaking cuss!" cried Uncle Sammy. "By the Fayetteville Road, Bob, not ten minutes ago—you can cut him off at Ox Road forks!"

Yancy breathed a sigh of relief. A rifle was placed in Yancy's hands.

"Thank you-all kindly," said Yancy, and turning away he struck off through the pine woods. A brisk walk of twenty minutes brought him to the Ox Road forks.

He had not long to wait, for presently the buggy hove in sight. As the buggy came nearer he recognized his ancient enemy in the person of the man who sat at Hannibal's side, and stepping into the road seized the horses by their bits. At sight of him Hannibal shrieked his name in delight.

"Uncle Bob—Uncle Bob—" he cried.

"Yes, it's Uncle Bob. You can light down, Nevvy."

"Leggo them horses!" said Mr. Blount.

"Light down, Nevvy," said Yancy, still pleasantly.

Hannibal instantly availed himself of the invitation. At the same moment Blount struck at Yancy with his whip, and his horses reared wildly, thinking the blow meant for them. Seeing that the boy had reached the ground in safety, Yancy relaxed his hold on the team, which instantly plunged forward. Then as the buggy swept past him he made a grab at Blount and dragged him out over the wheels into the road, where he proceeded to fetch Mr. Blount a smack in the jaw. Then with a final skilful kick he sent Mr. Blount sprawling. "Don't let me catch you around these diggings again, Dave Blount, or I swear to God I'll be the death of you!"

Hannibal rode home through the pine woods in triumph on his Uncle Bob's mighty shoulders.

CHAPTER IV.

Law at Balaam's Cross Roads.

But Mr. Yancy was only at the beginning of his trouble. Three days later there appeared on the borders of Scratch Hill a gentleman armed with a rifle. It was Charley Balaam, old Squire Balaam's nephew.

"Can I see you friendly, Bob Yancy?" Balaam demanded with the lungs of a stentor, sheltering himself behind the thick bole of a sweetgum, for he observed that Yancy held his rifle in the crook of his arm.

"I reckon you can, Charley Balaam, if you are friendly," said Yancy.

"I'm a-going to trust you, Bob," said Balaam. And forsaking the shelter of the sweetgum he shuffled up the slope.

"How are you, Charley?" asked Yancy, as they shook hands.

"Only just tolerable, Bob. You've been warranted—Dave Blount swore hit on to you." He displayed a sheet of paper covered with much writing and decorated with a large seal.

"Read it," he said mildly. Balaam scratched his head.

"I don't know that hit's my duty to do that, Bob. Hit's my duty to serve it on to you."

At this juncture Uncle Sammy's bent form emerged from the path that led off through the woods in the direction of the Bellamy cabin. With the patriarch was a stranger.

"Howdy, Charley. Here, Bob Yancy, you shake hands with Bruce Carrington," commanded Uncle Sammy. At the name both Yancy and Balaam manifested interest. They saw a man in the early twenties, clean-limbed and broad-shouldered, with a handsome face and shapely head. "Yes, sir, hit's a grandson of Tom Carrington that used to own the grist-mill down at the Forks."

"Where you located at, Mr. Carrington?" asked Yancy. But Carrington was not given a chance to reply. Uncle Sammy saved him the trouble.

"Back in Kentucky. He takes rafts down the river to New Orleans, then he comes back on ships to Baltimore, or else he hoofs it no'th overland. He wants to visit the Forks," he added.

"I'm shortly goin' that way myself, Mr. Carrington, and I'll be pleased of your company—but first I got to get through with Bob Yancy," said Balaam, and again he produced the warrant. "If agreeable to you, Bob, I'll ask Uncle Sammy to read this here warrant."

"Who's been a-warrantin' Bob Yancy?" cried Uncle Sammy.

"Dave Blount has."

"I knowed hit—I knowed he'd try to get even! What's the charge agin you, Bob?"

"Read hit," said Balaam. "Why, sho'—can't you read plain writin', Uncle Sammy?" for the patriarch was showing signs of embarrassment.

"If you gentlemen will let me—" said Carrington pleasantly. After a moment's scrutiny of the paper that Balaam had thrust in his hand, Carrington began:

"To the Sheriff of the County of Cumberland: Greetings:

"Whereas, It is alleged that a murderous assault has been committed on one David Blount, of Fayetteville, by Robert Yancy, of Scratch Hill, said Blount sustaining numerous bruises and contusions, to his great injury of body and mind; and, whereas, it is further alleged that said murderous assault was wholly unprovoked and without cause, you will forthwith take into custody the person of said Yancy, of Scratch Hill, charged with having inflicted the bruises and contusions herein set forth in the complaint of said Blount, and instantly bring him into our presence to answer to these and several crimes and misdemeanors. You are empowered to seize said Yancy wherever he may be at; whether on the hillside or in the valley, eating or sleeping, or at rest.

"DE LANCY BALAAM, Magistrate.

"Fourth District, County of Cumberland, State of North Carolina. Done this twenty-fourth day of May, 1835.

"P. S.—Dear Bob: Dave Blount says he ain't able to chew his meat. I thought you'd be glad to know."

Smilingly Carrington folded the warrant and handed it to Yancy.

"Well, what are you goin' to do about hit, Bob?" inquired Balaam.

"Maybe I'd ought to go. I'd like to oblige the squire," said Yancy.

"Suppose I come to the Cross Roads this evening?"

"That's agreeable," said the deputy, who presently departed in company with Carrington.

Some hours later the male population of Scratch Hill, with a gravity befitting the occasion, prepared itself to descend on the Cross Roads and give its support to Mr. Yancy in his hour of need. Even Uncle Sammy, who had not been off the Hill in years, announced that no consideration of fatigue would keep him away from the scene of action, and Yancy loaned him his mule and cart for the occasion. Yancy led the straggling procession, with the boy trotting by his side, his little sunburned fist clasped in the man's great hand.

The squire's court held its infrequent sittings in the best room of the Balaam homestead, a double cabin of hewn logs. Here Scratch Hill was gratified with a view of Mr. Blount's battered visage.

"What's all this here fuss between you and Bob Yancy?" demanded the squire when he had administered the oath to Blount. Mr. Blount's statement was brief and very much to the point.

"He done give me the order from the judge of the co't—I was to show it to Bob Yancy—"

"Got that order?" demanded the squire sharply. With a smile, damaged, but clearly a smile, Blount produced the order. "Hmm—app'inted guardeen of the boy—" the squire was presently heard to murmur. The crowded room was very still now, and more than one pair of eyes were turned pityingly in Yancy's direction. When the long arm of the law reached out from Fayetteville, where there was a real judge and a real sheriff, it clothed itself with terrors.

"Well, Mr. Blount, what did you do with this here order?" asked the squire.

"I showed Yancy the order—"

"You lie, Dave Blount; you didn't!" said Yancy. "But I can't say as it would have made no difference, squire. He'd have taken his licking just the same and I'd have had my nevvy out of that buggy!"

"Didn't he say nothing about this here order from the co't, Bob?"

"There wa'n't much conversation, squire. I invited my nevvy to light down, and then I snaked Dave Blount out over the wheel."

"Who struck the first blow?"

"He did. He struck at me with his buggy whip."

Squire Balaam removed his spectacles and leaned back in his chair.

"It's the opinion of this here co't that the whole question of assault rests on whether Bob Yancy saw the order. Bob Yancy swears he didn't see it, while Dave Blount swears he showed it to him. If Bob Yancy didn't know of the existence of the order he was clearly actin' on the idea that Blount was stealin' his nevvy, and he done what any one would have done under the circumstances. If, on the other hand, he knowed of this order from the co't, he was not only guilty of assault, but he was guilty of resistin' an officer of the co't." The squire paused impressively. His audience drew a long breath.

"Can a body drap a word here?" It was Uncle Sammy's thin voice that cut into the silence.

"Certainly, Uncle Sammy. This here co't will always admire to listen to you."

"Well, I'd like to say that I consider that Fayetteville co't mighty officious with its orders. This part of the county won't take nothin' off Fayetteville! We don't interfere with Fayetteville, and blamed if we'll let Fayetteville interfere with us!" There was a murmur of approval. Scratch Hill remembered the rifles in its hands and took comfort.

"The Fayetteville co't air a higher co't than this, Uncle Sammy," explained the squire indulgently.

"I'm aweer of that," snapped the patriarch. "I've seen hit's steeple."

"Air you finished, Uncle Sammy?" asked the squire deferentially.

"I 'low I am. But I 'low that if this here case is goin' again Bob Yancy I'd recommend him to go home and not listen to no mo' foolishness."

"Mr. Yancy will oblige this co't by setting still while I finish this case," said the squire with dignity. "Mr. Yancy has sworn to one thing, Mr. Blount to another. Now the Yancys air an old family in these parts; Mr. Blount's folks air strangers. Consequently," pursued the squire, somewhat vindictively, "we ain't had any time in which to form an opinion of the Blounts; but for myself, I'm suspicious of folks that keep movin' about and who don't seem able to get located permanent nowheres, who air here today and away tomorrow. But you can't say that of the Yancys. They air an old family in the country, and naturally this co't feels obliged to accept a Yancy's word before the word of a stranger. And, in view of the fact that the defendant did not seek litigation, but was perfectly satisfied to let matters rest where they was, it is right and just that all costs should fall on the plaintiff."

He Had Not Long to Wait, for Presently a Buggy Hove in Sight.

CHAPTER V.

The Encounter.

Betty Malroy had ridden into the squire's yard during the progress of the trial and when Yancy and Hannibal came from the house she beckoned the Scratch Hiller to her.

"You are not going to lose your nephew, are you, Mr. Yancy?" she asked eagerly, when Yancy stood at her side.

"No, ma'am." But his sense of elation was plainly tempered.

"I am very glad. I rode out to the Hill to say good-by to Hannibal and to you, but they said you were here and that the trial was today."

Captain Murrell, with Crenshaw and the squire, came from the house, and Murrell's swarthy face lit up at sight of the girl. Yancy would have yielded his place, but Betty detained him.

"Are you going away, ma'am?" he asked with concern.

"Yes—to my home in west Tennessee," and a cloud crossed her smooth brow.

"But ain't you ever coming back, Miss Betty?" asked Hannibal rather fearfully.

"Oh, I hope so, dear." She turned to Yancy. "I wonder you don't leave the Hill, Mr. Yancy. You could so easily go where Mr. Bladen would never find you. Haven't you thought of this?"

"That are a p'int," agreed Yancy slowly. "Might I ask you what parts you'd specially recommend?" lifting his grave eyes to hers.

"It would really be the sensible thing to do!" said Betty. "I am sure you would like west Tennessee—they say you are a great hunter." Yancy smiled almost guiltily.

"Mr. Yancy, if you should cross the mountains, remember I live near Memphis. Belle Plain is the name of the plantation—it's not hard to find; just don't forget—Belle Plain."

"I won't forget, and mebby you will see us there one of these days. Sho', I've seen mighty little of the world—about as far as a dog can trot in a couple of hours!"

Betty glanced toward the squire and Mr. Crenshaw. They were standing near the bars that gave entrance to the lane. Murrell had left them and was walking briskly down the road toward Crenshaw's store, where his horse was tied. She bent down and gave Yancy her slim white hand.

"Good-by, Mr. Yancy—lift Hannibal so that I can kiss him!" Yancy swung the child aloft. "I think you are such a nice little boy, Hannibal—you mustn't forget me!" And touching her horse lightly with the whip she rode away at a gallop.

"She sho'ly is a lady!" said Yancy, staring after her. "And we musn't forget Memphis or Belle Plain, Nevvy."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

The Trouble.

"What was the matter concerning the collapse of the official thermograph?"

"I don't know, unless somebody took its temperature."

Here we are back at the desk after a week's vacation. The writer's vacation was not one of idleness, but a change of work—the kind that makes the palms of your hands look as though they belonged to an honest man.

LOCALS.

Mrs. Victor A. Auman spent the 4th of July season with Mrs. Robert Miller, in Tyrone.

If you want a good, reliable binder twine, get the O. K. McCormick Standard at seven and one-half cents—R. D. Foreman, Centre Hall.

A stallion became vicious while under the care of George Bitner, of Beach Creek, and bit off one of the fingers from the right hand of his keeper.

At a recent meeting of the Centre Hall school board, D. F. Luse was elected a member of the board to fill the vacancy caused by the removal of L. G. Rearick from Centre Hall.

John H. Weber has been seriously ill at his home in Centre Hall during the past two weeks or more. His condition has been critical, and his many friends are much alarmed. He is receiving the best medical and surgical attention, and nothing is left undone for his comfort. His early recovery is earnestly hoped for by all.

Those who attended services in the Lutheran church on Sunday evening had the pleasure of listening to a solo by Miriam Huyett, ten years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Huyett, that was out of the ordinary for a child of her age. The title was "Just for Today." The child has an exceptionally sweet voice and almost perfect enunciation.

Mr. and Mrs. William W. Harpster have returned from Baltimore, and are again located at the Centre Hall hotel. Mr. Harpster was fortunate enough to secure a string of tickets, and attended almost every session of the convention. He is a Republican, but since hearing Bryan's pleadings for better things in politics, he thinks the Democratic party is of some account.

Brisbin & Company have finished peeling and hauling bark from Sprucetown. Just to show what a good team can do, Thomas Miller, who drives a team for William Bressler, loaded the remnants of the job, and when the load was drawn onto the scales at Centre Hall, the beams showed the net weight to be 5500 pounds, or two and three quarter tons. Seven car loads of bark were shipped from the tract.

Mrs. L. H. Krebbs, of Salt Lake City, Utah, was an arrival in Centre Hall on Monday afternoon, and is at the home of her father, D. P. Houser, and sister Mrs. Robert Bloom, west of Centre Hall. Mrs. Krebs is making her first trip east in twenty-two years. Mr. Krebs is a civil engineer and is connected with the engineering department of Salt Lake City, and owing to a death in the engineering force was unable to accompany his wife on this trip. He is a native of Ferguson township.

Horrible Death of a Child.

William Louis, aged sixteen months, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Clevenstine, Jr., two miles east of Zion, met a horrible death on Monday morning. Preparations were made for doing the week's washing by filling an iron kettle with water and lighting a fire under it in an outside fire place. The fire place was walled up on three sides to a height of about two and one-half feet, and on this wall the child, unobserved by the members of the family, climbed, and losing its poise fell into the kettle of water. Just how long the little one was boiled before discovered is not exactly known, but it is thought it could not have been more than ten or fifteen minutes. When discovered the lifeless body was lifted from the kettle, but the hairs of its head and scalp clung to the sides of the heated vessel against which it had rested. It was a most horrible death, and the scene of the parting of the flesh and dropping out of the teeth, was one never to be forgotten by those who witnessed it.

The fond parents have the deepest sympathy of all in this sad hour.

Boy Dragged to Death.

Miles Miller, nine years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Miller, of Coleville, was dragged to death on Tuesday morning. The lad mounted a harnessed colt to ride him to water, and for some reason the animal became frightened and started to run. The boy became entangled in the harness, and was dragged head downward for a quarter of a mile, when the horse was captured. When released the youth was dead, death having been caused by many cuts and bruises on all parts of the head.

Funeral services will be held to-day (Thursday) and interment will be made in the Union cemetery, at Bellefonte.

Red Mill Sold.

The Red Mill, one of the oldest mills in Penns Valley, located in Potter township, was sold recently by the executors of the John S. Auman estate to Charles Hockman, of Center Furnace, in College township. Mr. Hockman does not expect to operate the mill himself; although an experienced miller, and is conducting the Center Furnace mill with his father, Samuel Hockman.

Mr. Hockman informs the Reporter that the Red Mill plant will be extensively repaired. The mill is now operated by Albert Bradford, a son-in-law of the former owner, who has built up a good trade for flour and feed.

Advent Church Burned.

Saturday night, the last day of June, the Advent church, two and one-half miles east of Pleasant Gap, was totally destroyed by fire. The Sunday-school held a festival there on that night, and several hours after all had left the place the fire was discovered. It is presumed the fire originated from a cigar stump that a careless smoker had thrown near or onto inflammable material. Services were held in the church twice each month. The structure, although built many years ago, was kept in good repair. There was no insurance.

Broke Back in a Fall.

McKinley Osman, aged about fifty years, fell from a cherry tree at his home at State College, and although the distance was but ten feet he fell in such a way as to break his back. He was taken to the Bellefonte hospital where everything possible is being done for him.

DEATHS.

The Rev. Stephen W. Pomeroy, retired Presbyterian clergyman, who was pastor of the Mill Hall Presbyterian church for a goodly number of years and who was a veteran of the Civil War, died in Harrisburg, from a very sudden attack of neuralgia of the heart. He was in his seventy-sixth year.

John J. Irwin, one of Altoona's aldermen, died in that city at the age of sixty-four years. He was born at Jacksonville. He read law under Judge Beaver and was admitted to the Centre county bar in 1871. A wife, nee Miss Sarah D. Harkness, and two sons survive, as does also Robert H Irwin, of Bellefonte, a brother.

On July 4th, Emma, wife of O. M. Sheats, died at her home near Pine Hall, aged seventy-two years. Her maiden name was Hess. She was first married to B. Bates.

Thomas Kustenborder died at the home of his son-in-law, O. F. Shaw, at State College, aged eighty-six years.

The R'ght View.

There is no use talking about what parcels post is going to do to the small towns. It is a condition and not a theory. Parcels post will be added to the mail service, if not at this session of Congress, then soon. Two generations ago railroads were going to kill the small towns. Then it was the electric cars. Free rural delivery and a telephone in every farmer's house would fix it so that they never would come to town, and country stores were doomed, remarks the Middleburg Post. And yet, towns like Middleburg push right along, and show an increase each census. No wide awake merchant will be afraid of a law that will enable him to load up the rural mail carrier with boxes and bundles and start him out to do his delivering. We also remember the rural delivery was going to kill all the weekly papers, because all the farmers would take dailies. But, papers like the Post keep right on growing.

If you own a nice home

be it large or small, you can improve its appearance immensely by building not only the sidewalks, but the front steps, curbstone, well cover, cellar, fence posts, etc., of concrete. It is so much neater than wood and more sanitary. It never decays—is fire and rat proof—and can be easily kept clean.

Concrete is the simplest building material and the most durable. It is readily made from clean sand and a few sacks of good Portland cement—preferably Universal because of its uniform quality and great strength.

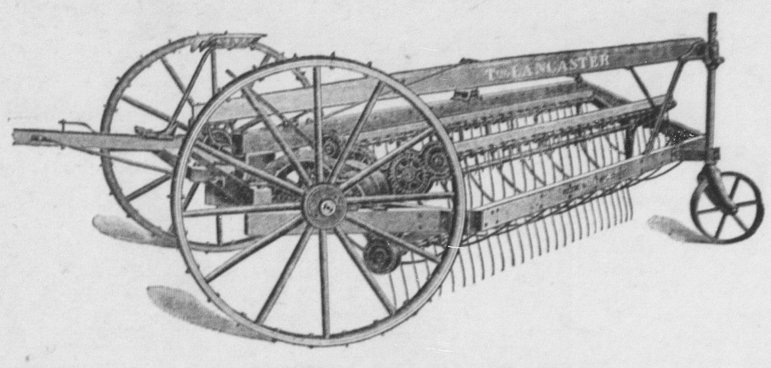
FOR SALE BY

W. GROSS MINGLE, Centre Hall, Pa.

Attention, Farmers.

We are here again this spring with a larger line of Implements and Machinery than ever before.

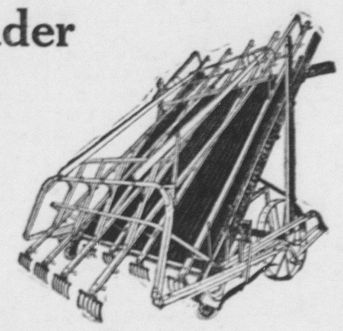
The "Lancaster" Side-delivery Hay Rake



The haying season will soon be on, and the Lancaster Side-delivery Hay Rake is a labor saver. It is simple, durable and easily operated.

The Lancaster gathers up the hay in a continuous, loose and fluffy windrow, which allows the air to pass through freely. The machine will rake clean the shortest blue grass as well as the heaviest clover and timothy.

The "Gearless" Hay Loader



Its name describes it—it is gearless, and has no gears to break, clog up, chains and sprockets to break, run off and cause no end of trouble. The long easy stroke delivers the hay whether heavy or light, on the wagon in better shape without chewing it up, without tearing off the leaver or without threshing out the seed as other loaders do.

The GEARLESS Hay Loader is not the cheapest hay loader you can buy but it is the best one. They are worth more than is asked for them.

The GEARLESS does its own loading. It pushes the hay well up onto the wagon; it does not need a watchman to keep it from clogging. The Gearless is sold on its merits, because it never fails to perform the work it is sold to do. The Gearless will pick up and load winrows and haycocks which other machines cannot handle.

WILSON AND MARSHALL WIN

Deadlock in the Democratic Convention Broken Down After a Hard Fight---Opposition to Wilson Beaten Down.

LANDSLIDE ON 46th BALLOT

DEMOCRATIC TICKET IN CAMPAIGN OF 1912.

For President—Woodrow Wilson, Of New Jersey. For Vice-President—Thomas R. Marshall, Of Indiana.

FINAL BALLOT FOR PRESIDENT.

The vote for the presidential nominee on the forty-sixth and last ballot stood:

WILSON	990
CLARK	84
HARMON	12

After 45 ballots, at the call of the forty-sixth, Underwood's name was withdrawn by Senator Bankhead. Senator Stone released the Clerk delegates. Mayor Fitzgerald, of Boston, withdrew Foss.

John J. Fitzgerald, of New York, moved to make the nomination unanimous, but Missouri insisted upon a last roll call, 84 votes being cast for Clark, 12 for Harmon and 990 for Wilson.

The nomination was then made unanimous.

At 3.40 o'clock the convention adjourned until 9.35 P. M. After two ballots for Vice-President, taken early Wednesday morning, Governor Marshall was nominated.

The platform was adopted.

The convention adjourned at 1.55 A. M., having been in session since June 25, seven working days.

Baltimore.—On the forty-sixth ballot, and after all the other candidates opposing him had been eliminated, Woodrow Wilson, Governor of the State of New Jersey, was nominated for the Presidency of the United States by the Democratic National Convention.

At 3.31 the Chair announced the result of the forty-sixth ballot as Clark 84, Wilson 990, absent 2.

At 3.33 the nomination was made unanimous.

At 4.42 the convention adjourned until 9 o'clock.

Woodrow Wilson's nomination came upon the fourth ballot of Tuesday's session, but from the moment almost that the convention assembled it was certain that he would be the speedy choice of the delegates.

Woodrow Wilson.

United States Senator Clarence W. Watson, of West Virginia, played a prominent part in the closing scenes of the most spectacular national convention of the Democracy in many years. Convinced that the whole people wanted the New Jersey man and believing that a long deadlock would be fatal to the party, he announced that he would swing the West Virginia delegation to Wilson. The break followed.

Illinois swung her solid delegation with the tide. Other delegations which had been solid for Clark disintegrated. Each of the succeeding ballots showed that the end was at hand.

And finally, when the venerable Senator Stone released the Clark delegates and when Underwood and Foss withdrew, the final ballot was taken.

Wild shouting, general good feeling and a high note of pathos dominated the last hour of the convention.

The pathos was furnished by the way the Missouri delegation "finished in style." To the end they voted for "old Champ Clark," and when they did it for the last time they stood up on their seats and shouted for the Speaker.

The true-blue Wilsonites, the New Jerseyites leading, joined in a tribute of spontaneous applause for the Missouri delegates.

When the deadlock of four days was finally broken things came with a rush. Senator Bankhead, of Alabama, precipitated it when he asked unanimous consent to make a statement.

Some of the Clark men, not understanding the move, raised cries of objection, but when telepathic thrills ran through the audience foretelling what was to come the auditorium grew silent as it has rarely been during the sessions of the convention.

The Senator paid a sincere tribute to Congressman Underwood and then released his delegates.

Senator Stone, following, did the same thing for Champ Clark, and it was really all over but the shouting.

The only note of discord in the windup was that produced by Theodore A. Bell's endeavor to explain his vote in the final ballot. Bell had made himself disagreeable to some of the Wilson men and they were unwilling to grant him a hearing, but Chairman James gave him a certificate of character and he was allowed to proceed.

The most remarkable thing about the prenomination ceremonies was the entire absence of William Jennings Bryan from participation in them. He sat in his chair smiling, evidently well pleased with the result.

The name of Underwood, of Alabama, was withdrawn from the contest at 2.25.

The speech of withdrawal was made by Senator Bankhead, who had placed Mr. Underwood in nomination.

In his address to the convention Senator Bankhead urged that no one would suggest Mr. Underwood for the Vice-Presidency and explained that Mr. Underwood felt he could be of more service to the country in his position on the floor of the House.

At 2.28 Senator Stone released all Clark men from their obligations to Clark. That opened the way for Wilson's nomination.

Right on the heels of Stone's action Governor Foss of Massachusetts was withdrawn.

As soon as Foss' name had been withdrawn Congressman Fitzgerald, of Brooklyn, said: "And I move that we nominate by acclamation that distinguished representative of Democracy of New Jersey, Governor Woodrow Wilson."

The match was in and the powder was set off. There was a wild outburst of cheers from every section of the hall. Every delegation, with the exception of Missouri, was on its feet yelling and cheering.

Over in the Nebraska delegation Bryan sat with a broad smile on his face.

Senator Reed, of Missouri, blocked motion to make Wilson's nomination unanimous, claiming that Missouri wanted to be registered as voting for Clark to the last.

Chairman James was vainly pounding for order. Governor Francis, Stone and Reed went back to the platform. Reed was recognized.

"Without the slightest desire to indicate any feeling of resentment against this motion," he said, "we must object to it. We want a rollcall so that Missouri's vote can be recorded on this ballot for old Champ Clark."

Delegate J. J. McClelland, of West Point, Mo., demanded the right to make a statement. As a delegate from Missouri, he said:

"I want to say that no people ever loved a man as the Democrats of Missouri have loved old Champ Clark.

"No one deplores the conditions that have arisen more than I. We are for Clark first, last and all the time; but if any man in Missouri stands for harmony and unity he should vote Wilson here."

THE BALLOTS FOR VICE-PRESIDENT.

First ballot for Vice-President taken at 1 o'clock Wednesday morning:

MARSHALL	378
BURKE	307 2-3
HURST	77
PRESTON	51
CHAMBERLAIN	157
McCOMBS	18
SULZER	3
WADE	26
OSBORN	8

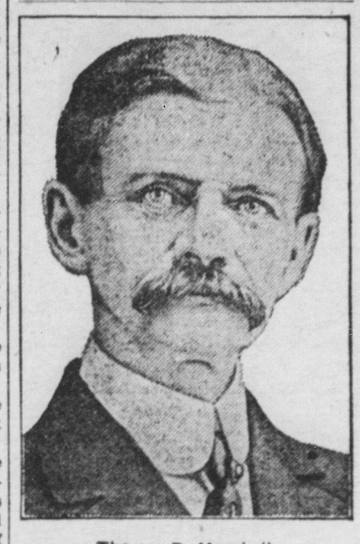
The second and final ballot stood:

MARSHALL	645 1-2
BURKE	387 1-3
CHAMBERLAIN	12 1-2

Marshall Nominated After Two Ballots.

The Democratic National Convention nominated Gov. Thomas R. Marshall, of Indiana, for the Vice-Presidency, adopted the most progressive platform in the history of the party and then adjourned just before 2 o'clock A. M., after the most remarkable series of sessions in recent political history.

The balloting for the Vice-Presidency continued through two roll calls. Then the Indianian was selected by acclamation. Governor Burke, of North Dakota, had been a promising candidate for two hours, but his strength failed him in spite of the support of William J. Bryan.



Thomas R. Marshall.

WOODROW WILSON.

Birthplace.

Born in Staunton, Va., December 28, 1856.

His father was the Rev. Joseph R. Wilson, a Presbyterian minister; his mother was a Woodrow.

Education.

When 18 years old he entered Davidson College, North Carolina, but one year later matriculated at Princeton, graduating in 1879.

The next two years were spent at the University of Virginia, studying law. He won the Thomas Jefferson medal for oratory.

As Lawyer.

Two years at Atlanta, Ga., practicing law, satisfied him with the business, and he turned again to the study of law and government at Johns Hopkins.

His Marriage.

While at the Baltimore university he married Ellen Louise Axson, of Savannah, Ga.

They have three daughters, Margaret, Jessie Woodrow and Eleanor Randolph.

In College Faculties.

Drafted as one of the original faculty of Bryn Mawr College and helped to organize the course of study there.

Next went to Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., as head of department of history and political economy.

Back to his alma mater to occupy the chair of jurisprudence and political economy was his next move.

In 1902 he was elected president of Princeton, the first layman to fill that post.

What He Did For Princeton.

He effected sadly needed reforms in the business affairs of the university and lifted the curriculum out of chaos.

Introduced the "preceptorial system."

Began his fight on the quadrangle system and to put all students on a man-to-man footing of democracy.

Proposed that clubs be taken over by university, but outside wealth defeated his plan.

Again locked horns with Princeton leaders about graduate school. This struggle continued up to the time of his resignation to run for Governor.

In Literature.

While at Hopkins he wrote, as his thesis, his work on "Congressional Government."

He produced "The State," his biography of George Washington, his "History of the United States" and "Division and Reunion."

His Political Side.

Eight years ago and four years ago he was mentioned as Presidential timber.

Little less than two years ago he was nominated for Governor of New Jersey and elected.

Under His Governing.

He was responsible for the defeat of James Smith, Jr., Democratic "boss," when he desired election to the United States Senate.

Public Service Commission created.

Modern workmen's compensation act enacted.

Primary election laws extended.

Corrupt practices act strengthened.

In addition, the State's school system has been reorganized; cold-storage laws regulated; contract labor abolished in penal institutions; indeterminate sentences for criminals provided; age, employment, health, safety and work hours of persons employed in mercantile establishments regulated; law making for regulation of blind adopted, and the civil service extended to employes of State, counties and municipalities.

CONVENTION CHAT

When supper was over and the dishes washed, Baltimore went downtown, baby in the gocart, mother without her hat on and father in his shirtsleeves and vest, and saw the convention. Every night was carnival night while the convention was on.

Delegates at Baltimore received indignant messages about Mr. Bryan's defeat Tuesday in the convention.

An altruist filtered through the entrance crowds. Now and then he would pause before a group, fish out a printed slip and read: "To protect our Democrats, 'Some don'ts,'" he would add in a waggish aside and then wait until the last paroxysm of laughter had subsided before continuing earnestly: "To return home in good shape, don't eat ice cream or drink milk when eating crabs."

Act placed on statute book giving municipalities the privilege to adopt the commission form of government

FATAL GAS EXPLOSION.

Escaping Gas Explodes From Lighted Lantern.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Two little girls were fatally hurt and 12 other persons were burned and bruised when gas, escaping in a conduit, exploded from a lighted lantern. The fire department had ordered the lantern hung over the conduit to warn passers-by, after one man, in trying to fix the leak, had been almost asphyxiated

THE DAIRY

GOOD PLAN FOR DAIRY HOUSE

Demand Created by Recent Developments for Building Fulfilling Sanitary Requirements.

(By E. KELLY and K. E. PARKS.)

Recent developments in dairying have caused a large demand for a dairy house which will fulfill sanitary requirements and at the same time be practical and inexpensive. For those who are striving to improve the quality of their products, such a building is an absolute necessity. Milk which is poured or strained in the barn, or allowed to stand there, is apt to be contaminated by germs and to absorb stable odors. The best practice is to remove the milk to the dairy house as soon as each cow is milked. Milk should be cooled immediately, so the dairy house should be provided with proper facilities for this purpose.

Inexpensive, Sanitary Dairy House.

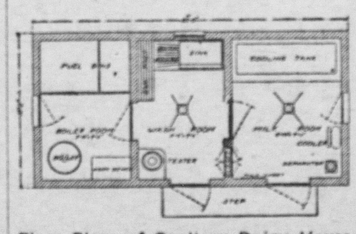
While the dairy house should be conveniently located so that the milkers do not have a long walk from the barn, it must be so placed that it is free from contaminating surroundings. It should be built on a well-drained spot, and the drainage of the dairy house itself should be carried well away from the building. If possible the ground should slope from the dairy house toward the barn, rather than from the barn toward the dairy house.

The principal purpose in building a dairy house is to provide a place where dairy products may be handled apart from everything else. To carry out this idea it is necessary to divide the interior of the building so that utensils will not have to be washed in the same room where the milk is handled. Thorough cleanliness must always be kept in mind; therefore there should be no unnecessary ledges or rough surfaces inside the building, so that it can be quickly and thoroughly cleaned. Ventilators are necessary to keep the air in the milk room fresh and free from musty and undesirable odors, and to carry off steam from the wash room. Windows are of prime importance, as they let in fresh air and sunlight, and facilitate work. In summer the doors and windows should be screened to keep out flies and other insects.

It is imperative that there should be a plentiful supply of cold, running water at the dairy house. If it is not possible to have a regular water system, the supply may be piped from an elevated tank fed by a hydraulic ram, engine, windmill or hand pump.

For the proper sterilization of utensils an abundance of steam or hot water is neded. A pail or can may be clean to the eye and yet may carry numberless germs which will hasten the souring of the milk, cause bad flavor in butter or cheese, or spread contagion. After utensils are washed clean they should be either scalded with boiling water or steamed.



Floor Plans of Sanitary Dairy House, Showing General Arrangement.

The dairy house should be so built that labor is economized to the greatest extent. To do this the building must be arranged so that unnecessary steps will be avoided.

Rations for Dairy Cattle.

The following general facts should be observed in making up the ration for a dairy cow. A cow should be fed all that she will eat and digest well, giving due consideration to the cost, digestibility and composition of the food fed. The more palatable the food the greater quantity a cow will consume. Variety often increases palatability.

A part of the ration should be succulent in nature, as such food stimulates action in the intestinal tract, which stimulates vigor, thrift and health in the animal. Another important part of the food supply is water. Too often this is not given proper consideration.

Silo and the Dairy.

The careful farmer who gives his personal attention to the making and feeding of silage and is not satisfied with the result is yet to be heard from. The silo seems to be edging mighty near the cornerstone of successful dairying.

Do the Best We Can.

The best cows are none too good when measured by their profits, but all of us cannot afford to go out and buy the best; hence we should try and do the best we can with those we have until we can secure better.

CARE OF MILK IN THE HOME

Frequently Contains Bacteria in Such Large Numbers It Is Not Safe for the Children.

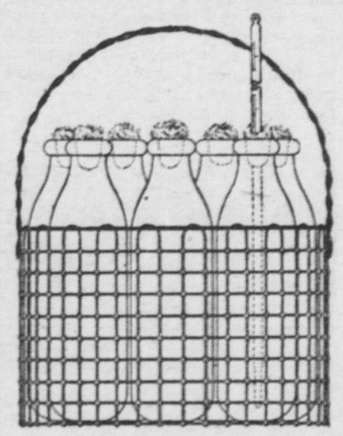
Milk delivered in the cities in the summer months frequently contains bacteria in such large numbers that it is not a safe food for children, especially for infants whose food consists entirely of milk. When it is impossible to obtain milk entirely free from suspicion, it is advisable to pasteurize the milk.

Pasteurization should be done in such a way that disease-producing bacteria as well as those likely to produce intestinal disturbances are destroyed without injuring the flavor or the nutritive value of the milk. This may be accomplished in the home by the use of a simple improvised outfit.

Milk is most conveniently pasteurized in the bottles in which it is delivered. To do this use a small pail with a perforated false bottom. An inverted pie tin with a few holes punched in it will answer for this purpose. This will raise the bottles from the bottom of the pail, thus allowing a free circulation of the water and preventing bumping of the bottles.

Punch a hole through the cap of one of the bottles and insert a thermometer—a good one with the scale etched on the glass should be used. Set the bottles of milk in the pail and fill the pail with water nearly to the level of the milk. Put the pail on the stove or over a gas flame and heat it until the thermometer in the milk shows not less than 145 degrees nor more than 150 degrees. The bottles should then be removed and allowed to stand from 20 to 30 minutes.

The punctured cap should be replaced with a new one or the bottle covered with an inverted cup. After



Wire Basket holding bottles for pasteurization of milk.

30 minutes the milk should be cooled as quickly as possible. Set the bottles first in warm water, to avoid breaking by sudden change in temperature. Replace this water slowly with cold water. After cooling the milk should be kept at the lowest available temperature.

This method may be employed to retard the souring of milk or cream for ordinary purposes.

KEEP MILK COOL IN SUMMER

Where Ice Cannot Conveniently Be Used Piece of Flannel Cloth, Immersed in Water, Is Good.

When ice or cold water cannot be obtained, or where a can of milk has to be left in a place where water and ice cannot be conveniently used, a wet cloth—preferably flannel—wrapped around the can is an aid in keeping milk cool.

One end of the cloth is best left extending from the bottom of the can and immersed in a pail of water. A large amount of the sun rays falling on the wet cloth is consumed in evaporating moisture, and is thus prevented from reaching the milk. So long as the cloth is kept wet it is a protection, but as soon as it becomes dry heat passes through it to the milk uninterrupted.

DAIRY NOTES

Keep your cream test around 30 per cent.

Good fences and good pasture are a fine combination.

Foamy butter is a sign that the cream was too sour.

The more the study, the greater the success in dairying.

Soaking the churn in brine occasionally will help keep it sweet.

The best milk flow cannot be maintained without a variety of feeds for the cow.

In these days of fresh green grass, don't fail to keep plenty of salt before the cows.

Individual excellence is the only safe guide to be depended upon in selecting cows to build up a good herd.

To thoroughly clean milk utensils they first should be rinsed with cold water, to remove all particles of milk.

Fly time means milking after dusk, having a darkened milking shed, the use of some fly repeller, or else a fight with flies and cows.

The best dairy appliances in the world are of little use to us if we do not learn how to use them to the best possible advantage.

Do not turn the cows on the lush grass long at a time; neither is it well to shut off their grain as soon as grass comes. Taper off slowly.

One advantage of succulent feed is the fact that it not only provides the cow with more moisture, but at the same time is more appetizing.

WAGGISH.

Percy—What a sad dog you are. Always short!

Reggy—Well, I'm no dachshund, I'll admit.

TERRIBLE ITCHING ON LIMBS

Glen Wilton, Va.—"Five years ago I was in a terrible state of suffering with blotches on my limbs, of the most intense stinging and itching. I could not rest day or night; the itching was so severe that it waked me out of sleep. I could never get a full night's rest. I actually scrubbed the very flesh so severely that in a short time the affected places were so sore I could scarcely walk with any ease or comfort. The places were a solid raised up mass. I would scratch the parts until they would bleed. I tried home remedies but got no good; the itching just kept on getting worse. I used some salve which simply was no good at all.

"I happened to see the Cuticura Soap and Ointment advertisement and wrote for a free sample. Almost like magic I commenced getting relief. I bought a 50c box of Cuticura Ointment and some Cuticura Soap and I was entirely cured from a torment that would be hard to describe." (Signed) W. P. Wood, Mar. 9, 1912.

SEVEN YEARS OF MISERY

How Mrs. Bethune was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Sikeston, Mo. — "For seven years I suffered everything. I was in bed for four or five days at a time every month, and so weak I could hardly walk. I had cramps, backache and headache, and was so nervous and weak that I dreaded to see anyone or have anyone move in the room. The doctors gave me medicine to ease me at those times, and said that I ought to have an operation. I would not listen to that, and when a friend of my husband's told him about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for his wife, I was willing to take it. Now I look the picture of health and feel like it, too. I can do all my own housework, work in the garden and entertain company and enjoy them, and can walk as far as any ordinary woman, any day in the week. I wish I could talk to every suffering woman and girl, and tell them what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. DEMA BETHUNE, Sikeston, Mo.

Remember, the remedy which did this was Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

It has helped thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means have failed. Why don't you try it?

EDUCATORS RAP RURAL SCHOOLS

National Council of Educators On at Chicago.

MUST REVIVE INTEREST

Report Is Submitted, Criticising Our Rural School System. Country Child Is Neglected.

Chicago.—The little red schoolhouse is so "unattractive" that "more than two-thirds of the 12,000,000 pupils in the rural public schools fail to reach a high standard in their studies."

That condition was described as a menace to educational progress and as one of the reasons why the country child looks longingly toward the city, in a report submitted before the National Council of Education here. The conditions surrounding the traditional little red schoolhouse were described as so deplorable that the council considered a plan to have the national association employ an expert to investigate and report on rural districts.

E. T. Fairchild, state superintendent of public instruction, Topeka, Kas., and James Y. Joyner, Raleigh, N. C., declared that the "country child is the neglected child, and the country schoolhouse a neglected schoolhouse." They said the importance of rural education was shown in the fact that of the 20,000,000 school children in the United States 12,000,000 attended country schools, yet less than one-third of the rural pupils were able to meet their grades.

"There must be a revival of interest in the country school if the education of the country is to progress," said Mr. Joyner. "We must cease centering all our attention on the city school. There must be aroused in the schoolhouse in the desert, on the mountain or on the farm a love of rural life, and not a hatred of it. Neglect our rural schools and they will be deserted; make them attractive and comfortable and education will flourish."

The teaching of scientific farming and fruit growing with special reference to local conditions were recommended as an incentive to renewed interest in rural education.

KEYNOTE AUGUST 7.

That Date Agreed Upon For Notification At Sea Girt.

Sea Girt, N. J.—Gov. Woodrow Wilson and Senator-elect Ollie James, of Kentucky, who was permanent chairman of the Baltimore convention, decided to have the Governor formally notified of his nomination on the lawn of New Jersey's "Little White House" here at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of Wednesday, August 7. Mr. James came up from Washington and had a long talk with the nominee, during which he was requested to name as late a date as possible to afford Governor Wilson an opportunity to catch up with his correspondence, now some 10,000 letters and telegrams behind.

DON'T WANT A FORTUNE.

A Gardener Heir To Millions Refuses To Go After It.

London.—It has just been learned that Richard Walters, an aged gardener who died recently in Auckland, New Zealand, was the long missing heir to a $15,000,000 estate in Chancery. Walters knew he was the heir and his employer urged him to prosecute his claim, but the old man said he was satisfied with his station in life and sent word that he regarded the fortune as not worth the trouble.

Baptist Society Would Vie With Moving Pictures.

Toledo, O.—In an organized effort to wrest public favor from moving picture shows and saloons, social service workers attending the International Baptist Young People's Union, in session here, indorsed a policy of providing church entertainments for young people that would prove more attractive than those supplied by popular amusements opposed.

COMMERCIAL

Weekly Review of Trade and Market Reports.

Bradstreet's says:

"Better weather, favorable crop reports, increased orders for future delivery, better retail trade, heavy consumption of finished steel, which taxes mill producing capacity, and higher prices for plates, shapes and bars, comprehend the leading features of the week.

"Withal, current trade in the larger lines has decreased, as a natural proceeding at this season of the year, when wholesale dealers and jobbers are about to take stock to find out how they stand from the viewpoint of profits and to make preparations for fall and beyond. Jobbers, especially those purveying staple goods, have done a little better in the way of reorders. Still, as a general proposition, these distributors, especially those engaged in selling the various lines of dry goods, are doing little on regular spot business, although clearance sales of odds and ends, suitable for the bargain counters of retail dealers, tend to prevent marked dullness.

"Wheat, including flour, exports from the United States and Canada for the week aggregate 3,187,531 bushels, against 4,734,034 bushels last week and 21,078,405 bushels this week last year. Corn exports for the week are 149,635 bushels, against 59,463 bushels last week and 613,848 bushels in 1911."

Standard of Sanity.

Shakespeare was asked if Hamlet was sane.

"As sane as the Fourth of July," he replied.

With the Lid Off.

"Mother," asked Bob, with a hopeful eye on the peppermint-jar, "have I been a good boy this afternoon?"

"M-m-yes," answered mother, dubiously, recalling a certain little rift within the lute. The four-year-old diplomat looked anxious.

"Please," he begged, "say a wide-open yes!"—Harper's Bazar.

Willing to Oblige.

A story comes from a town where firms advertise to sell fish direct to small purchasers. The glowing advertisements asked for the sending of half a dollar with a list of the varieties of fish preferred. One letter read:

"I want two salmon, a dozen whiting, a dozen fresh herring, some flounders, and if you have them you can add a lobster."

The next day the lady received a letter, which ran:

"Dear Madam: Please send another dime and we will forward the fisherman."—Dallas News.

Noted Author.

"See that man over there with the black mustache?" said Tompy.

"Yes," said the visitor.

"Well," said Tompy, "he is the author of one of the most popular serials in a hundred years."

"Really?" said the visitor. "Why, he doesn't look like a literary man."

"No," said Tompy. "He isn't—he's the inventor of popped grits, the best selling cereal on the market."—Harper's Weekly.

Where He Drew the Line.

An English earl, lately deceased, who had no family, was notorious for his hatred of children, and on one occasion he engaged as lodge keeper an army pensioner named McMicken. Some few months later McMicken's wife presented him with a son and heir. On learning of the occurrence his lordship rode down to the lodge in a terrible rage.

"I hear," said he to Mr. McMicken, "that your wife has a son."

"Yes, my lord," said the man proudly.

"Well, now, look here, McMicken; when I put you here, it was to open and shut a gate, but by the Lord Harry, not to propagate."

Springs In Their Brains.

Two Frenchmen, in visiting an art gallery, stopped to admire a painting by an American. The artist happened to be in the gallery and in broken English one of the Frenchmen asked: "How did monsieur ever catch such a wonderful picture?"

"O," replied the artist, with a far-away look, "that painting was an offspring of my brain."

The other Frenchman was greatly interested and asked his friend what that American had said.

"I can hardly explain," whispered the first Frenchman excitedly; "he said ze picture was one spring off of his brain. Ees eet any wonder zat ze Americans act queerly when they have springs on their brains."

GOOD NIGHT'S SLEEP

No Medicine So Beneficial to Brain and Nerves.

Lying awake nights makes it hard to keep awake and do things in day time. To take "tonics and stimulants" under such circumstances is like setting the house on fire to see if you can put it out.

The right kind of food promotes refreshing sleep at night and a wide awake individual during the day.

A lady changed from her old way of eating Grape-Nuts, and says:

"For about three years I had been a great sufferer from indigestion. After trying several kinds of medicine, the doctor would ask me to drop off potatoes, then meat, and so on, but in a few days that craving, gnawing feeling would start up, and I would vomit everything I ate and drank.

"When I started on Grape-Nuts, vomiting stopped, and the bloated feeling which was so distressing disappeared entirely.

"My mother was very much bothered with diarrhoea before commencing the Grape-Nuts, because her stomach was so weak she could not digest her food. Since using Grape-Nuts food she is well, and says she don't think she could do without it.

"It is a great brain restorer and nerve builder, for I can sleep as sound and undisturbed after a supper of Grape-Nuts as in the old days when I could not realize what they meant by a 'bad stomach.' There is no medicine so beneficial to nerves and brain as a good night's sleep, such as you can enjoy after eating Grape-Nuts." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Helped a Little.

At Dinard one summer there was a beautiful young countess, the wife of a millionaire, whose bathing dress was —well—

A couple of men about town were talking in shocked tones about the countess' bathing dress on the casino terrace.

"It's shocking; it's most improper," said the first.

"But," said the second, "I can't believe it's any worse than the dinner dress she wore at Mrs. Hughes-Hallet's ball last night.

"Oh, well," said the other, "she had her diamonds on then."—Rochester Evening Telegram.

Same Purpose Accomplished.

"Oh, Georgie!" exclaimed a fond mother, when she saw her small boy considerably battered up and dirty, "you have been fighting again! How often have I told you that you shouldn't fight?"

"Well," said he, "what are you going to do when a fellow hits you?"

"Why, keep out of his way," said the mother.

"I bet," said the youngster, "he'll keep out of mine after this."

Modern Miracle.

"Do you believe in miracles?" asked Dobkins.

"You bet I do," said Snobkins. "Why, only the other day my wife bought me a box of cigars, and by George, Dobky, I could smoke 'em."—Harper's Weekly.

Blessed Sympathy.

Sympathy with animals blesses and humanizes men and women. To get into real relations with an animal is a liberal education. It is something to be really interested even in a plant and to observe the working of life in any sphere not our own. How much more when that life is directing a personality which consciously looks up to us and will love us if we will let it!—Christian Register.

Ruling Spirit Still Strong.

Mrs. J. L. Story, who has just published a volume of reminiscences, tells of a lady relative who had all her life been afraid of damp sheets. When she was dying Mrs. Story entered the room, to find the fireplace barricaded with a large assortment of bed linen. She was having her winding sheet warmed.

"I never have lain in damp bedclothes while I was alive," said the old lady in a feeble whisper, "and I'm not going to do it when I'm dead."

Singing and the Lungs.

It is well known that singing, like whistling, is a fine exercise for the lungs, and some doctors advise those who fear consumption to go in for singing for this reason.

At the same time they, of course, do not advance the claim that singing alone will save anyone from or cure consumption. Acquire the habit of taking the big deep breath, which is a primary requisite of any kind of singing, bad or good, and the physical joy derived from it will never allow you to relapse into lazy breathing.

Her Special Advantages.

James Fullerton Muirhead in his book, "The Land of Contrasts," tells of an American girl who was patronizingly praised by an Englishman for the purity of her English and who replied: "Well, I had special advantages, inasmuch as an English missionary was stationed near our tribe."

And So True, Too.

Father was walking to Sunday-school with little Johnny, and endeavoring to improve the time by teaching Johnny his Golden Text, the words of which were: "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." Johnny repeated it after his father several times, and seemed to have mastered the correct wording.

As they drew near the Sunday school the father gave Johnny his last rehearsal. "Now, son," he said, "let's have the Golden Text once more without any help from me:

This is what he got from Johnny: "Whatsoever a man sews always rips."—Harper's Bazar.
